Question 29 - please provide any other comments you have on module 10B:

One of the new provisions in the draft new SORP is that lessee charities will have to account for their leases as an asset and a liability on their balance sheet. Lessors are not required to change our method of accounting for leases. However, it does have two implications for lessor charities:

Charity tenants who pay below market rent may well request what their market rent would be if the lessor charity didn't discount it in order to comply with the new SORP reporting requirements. However, assessing what might be a reasonable market rent for some properties is likely to be complicated and expensive, especially if they are heritage properties, and such an assessment would have no value to them beyond helping them and their tenants meet the SORP requirements.

Similarly, where lessor charities do 'subsidise' charities, they would need to account for the shortfall as a 'notional grant' and explain how this 'notional grant' helps them to meet their charitable activities. However, the reality is that part, if not all, of the reason they 'subsidise' these rents may to pursue their own charitable objectives.

It seems to us that there should be an exemption within the SORP

Where the cost of compliance with it outweighs any reporting benefit (essential)

and

Where the lessor charity and the lessee charity both benefit from any possible subsidy and the split cannot be reasonably measured or

Where the lessor is a heritage charity which is pursuing its own objectives in setting a below market rent or

Where a charity pays a below market rent because it has taken on poorly maintained premises and has to pay to make good the premises, and there is no gift involved.
